

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0059] An apparatus for supporting a substrate is provided. In one embodiment, a substrate support is provided having a body and an upper portion having a socket and ball adapted to minimize friction and/or chemical reactions between the substrate support and the substrate supported thereon. The substrate supports may be utilized in various chambers such as load locks and chambers having thermal processes.